KEYOFGIGI

Spring Quarter wk 1-4

2026

MELANIE HUI

TARGET AUDIENCE

Mainly younger female audience, college students who might be going through heartbreak, etc

Non-Music UCLA Students

Already established name recognition within the Music Industry Dept; want to avoid brand-associated exhaustion.

Non-UCLA Students (Social Media)

Continue developing a fan base outside of dependence on UCLA students (schools in TN and GA have the highest % of country music fans)

EXAMPLES:

reggae band in CSULB—got famous off of playing at restaurants

- performed at sorority philo event, raised a ton of money, etc
- reach out to sororities? specifically about philo week
- wondering what events you had planned and just playing for exposure

- Wyatt Flores (@officialwyattflores)
  - DITL on Insta, not just promotional
- Hudson Westbrooke (@hudsonwestbrooke)
  - posts his creative process (brainstorming, ideation, etc)
- Luke Black(@lukeblack_music)
  - mixes his music with comedy to entice people to watch through the entire reel

CONTENT PILLARS

Busking

Easy to access (both for Keyofgigi and potential audiences); low stakes way of getting exposure to new groups

- potentially get an accompanist?

BTS Content/Trends

BTS makes the artist more relatable and popular trends pushes online content to potential new fans from other non-LA areas

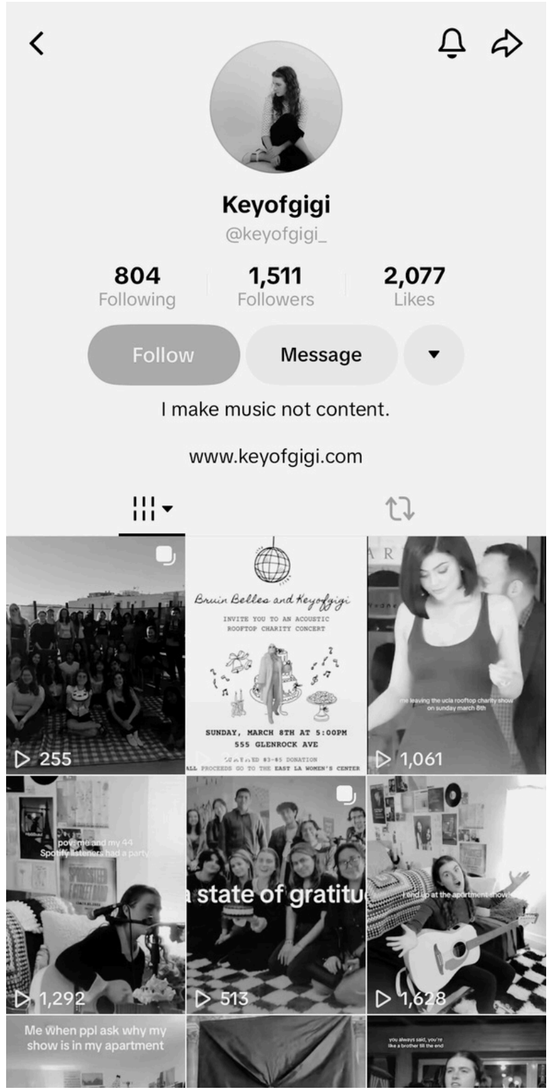

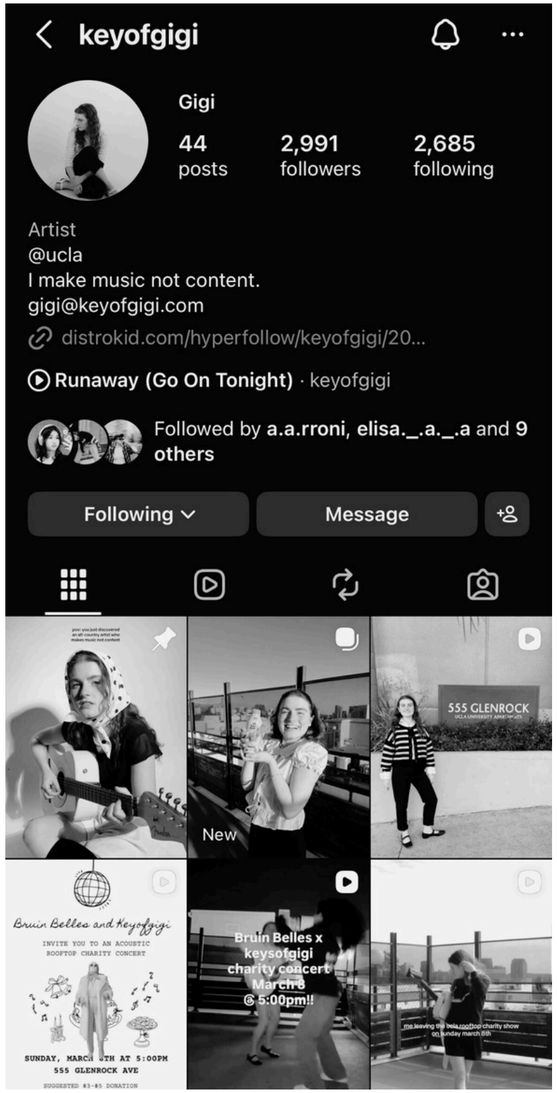

Collaborations

Can be very useful when trying to reach new audiences; already-established organizations with a set fan base

Rooftop concerts should still be kept as a form of brand identity; these are just potential new ideas that I think should be expanded on

WEEKLY BREAKDOWN

Goal: Boost new follower count to reach new audiences

Week 1: Reestablish your brand. Post 1-2 times with aesthetic content (mood board with your music in the background to solidify perceived aesthetic); maybe some more trend videos

Week 2: Start posting more music-specific content (ex: BTS, any creative process, the aim is authenticity!)

Week 3: Busking! Not a full-fledged concert but busking on a street corner (not on campus or in Westwood, though)---post location and time on socials but not official concert--pick a cause to raise funds for potentially (TwoSet Violin)

Week 4: Rooftop Concert! Could make it a bi-quarterly thing so there's more of a schedule (similar to how music clubs throw), but rooftop solidifies the brand. Potential collaboration with another student org? (music club or Greek life are possibilities)
